

Fremantle Hospital and Health Service

Gaging success of community donations

Fremantle Ports new Chief Executive Officer Chris Leatt-Hayter, members of their executive and community relations team visited the hospital's Gage Roads Transit Lounge last night to see first hand how donations made by them were helping patients, visitors and staff.

Fremantle Ports has an historic relationship with Fremantle Hospital and the hospital presented the Ports with a token of appreciation for their on-going community support.

Fremantle Ports staff were shown around Gage Roads Transit Lounge by Nursing Director of Patient Flow, Jenny Brenton, Nurse Manager, Lorraine MacLennan and members of the hospital Executive.

In years gone by, the Fremantle Harbour Trust, as it was then known, contributed funds on a regular basis to the hospital.

ABOVE: Fremantle Ports staff Jeanette Murray, Helen Elliott, Steve Wade with Jenny Brenton (second left) from Fremantle Hospital.

ABOVE: Chris Leatt-Hayter and Alex Smith.

LEFT: Steve Wade and Chris Leatt-Hayter with donated photos from Fremantle Ports.

Fremantle Hospital and Health Service

ABOVE: Jeanette Murray, Helen Elliott, Thor Elliott and Lorraine MacLennan.

RIGHT: Helen Elliott and Baden Pratt.

ABOVE: A/Prof Ruth Letts and Ainslie de Vos.

RIGHT: Fremantle Ports staff Chris Leatt-Hayter, Ainslie de Vos, Jeanette Murray, Helen Elliott, Thor Elliott tour the Gage Roads Transit Lounge with Nurse Manager Lorraine MacLennan .

Fremantle Ports' connection today is a great example of the Fremantle business community coming together to support us.

When the discharge lounge was first suggested Fremantle Ports donated to refurbish the area, resulting in the purchase of a number of modern beds for the facility.

Framed photographs also donated by Fremantle Ports added to the ambience of the facility.

Because of the success of Gage Roads the hospital has now increased its size and once more Fremantle Ports has helped.

Now, Fremantle Ports has donated a first-class coffee machine. Without this facility our nurses were constantly run off their feet trying to fill requests from patients who wanted a drink.

Fremantle Ports also support our Children's Ward. They recently donated the huge shade cloth for the outdoor play area.